the District of Columbia Regarding Energy Affordability

Sponsored by the Office of the People's Counsel for the District of Columbia

RFP Issue Date: October 16, 2024

Proposal Due Date: October 28, 2024

SECTION 1 - SCOPE OF WORK

I. Introduction

The Office of the People’s Counsel for the District of Columbia (“OPC” or “Office”), the statutory representative for District of Columbia utility ratepayers and consumers, pursuant to D.C. Official Code § 34-804, seeks technical services from qualified firms and individuals for its activities related to advocating the interests of District ratepayers in matters concerning energy affordability. This RFP is released pursuant to OPC’s contract and procurement authority (as delineated in D.C. Official Code §§ 34-804(c) and 34-912, as amended).

II. Background

The District of Columbia’s energy landscape has undergone significant change over the past two decades, including adopting a Renewable Energy Portfolio Standard, implementing energy choice, deploying Advanced Metering Infrastructure, and advancing solar energy solutions. Although consumers’ options for purchasing and generating energy have increased, many households across income levels continue to struggle with energy affordability issues. In addition to an unprecedented amount of arrearage from electric and gas consumers as a consequence of the Covid-19 pandemic, and the economic challenges faced as a result, the District has also seen its respective electric and gas utilities seek more frequent requests for rate increases from the Public Service Commission. Amid all these changes, OPC remains committed to meeting its mandate to ensure that DC residents have access to high-quality utility services that are safe, reliable, universally affordable, and environmentally sustainable, and therefore seeks solutions that enable equitable access to energy.

III. Tasks

OPC seeks a vendor capable of studying and developing a report on energy affordability for residential consumers in the District of Columbia. The purpose of the study is to define affordability as it relates to current and future utility consumers and propose recommendations to make the energy burden more affordable. The study should quantify the scope of the current energy burden, develop a survey of existing energy assistance and affordability programs that are available to support District residents, and assess and provide ways to mitigate the potential impact on the energy burden from wholesale market changes, and grid modernization, decarbonization, and other “future-looking” utility-related initiatives.

In addition to this, the vendor should review current utility affordability program rate structures in various jurisdictions across the country and suggest potentially feasible options based on the characteristics of the District and the needs of its residents.

The study will provide the demographic and geographic characteristics of residents impacted by energy affordability and will be updated on a bi-annual basis. The study will be used to help develop recommendations on how to improve District Government programming offered to residential consumers.
